There was a time when web sites didn't have to look great-- They were often designed by programmers with little or not design skill. People were forgiving of poor designs. Now, that has all changed. People expect your web site to not only be functional, but to look great. CSS will give you the ability to completely style your web page to catch the attention of your audience. CSS is perhaps the most ignored core skill for web developers and designers. With this course taught by development expert Andrew Snyder-Spak, you'll learn the foundations of CSS through more advanced topics like page layout. This course will teach you everything you need to layout HTML5 based content in traditional web browsers or mobile devices. Designed to be both approachable and fun, this course makes CSS easy to learn-- whether your an advanced coder or new to web development. Those who complete this course will be able to sit for the CSS Specialist Examination offered by publisher LearnToProgram.tv. (Additional Charge applies). When you pass the exam you'll earn the CSS Specialist Designation which may be displayed on your Linkedin account and personal certificate verification page.
