

Feelings Reading Rainbow Books

A Puerto Rican boy in New York makes his first trip to Puerto Rico where he learns about yagua days.

"Henry Winterbottom and the Feeling Rainbow" is an illustrated children's book written by Jen B. Wild and illustrated by Day. The book is designed to help children understand emotions by reading about Henry's experience with a colorful spectrum of feelings. Through his adventures, Henry Winterbottom learns about the experience of emotions in a way that is easy for children to understand. Henry and his wild imagination are brought to life with vivid illustrations that pop off the page. This book is aimed at young readers from 4 to 8 years old. The goal of the book is to give children a way to appreciate and embrace their feelings through a main character that we hope will become a trusted companion.

Traditional Chinese edition of The Good Egg Presents: The Great Eggscape!

Presents a guide to children's literature and activities revolving around such themes as farm animals, dinosaurs, fairy tales, and poetry, along with teaching strategies that encourage children to read.

A fun to read book helping children identify and accept their emotions. Accepting how we feel makes it easier to accept who we are. We can all learn how to deal with our feelings in a better way if we start by accepting them. It is ok to feel sad sometimes and it is natural to feel angry at times too. The aim of this book is to encourage a positive self image and to support resilience in children. It also gives carers and teachers an opportunity to talk to children about the various complicated or conflicting feelings they experience. The book is bright and colourful so it engages children as you read. I wanted to make it fun to read, so there are animal and human characters representing the different experiences we all share. Age: While I would read this to my son at 3 I think it is best for children 4-9 or perhaps older if they are struggling to accept themselves. Hi! I am Anna, the author. I have a little boy called Luca and I do my best to raise him using a positive parenting style and I also trust my instinct a lot. I know that it takes a huge investment of time, energy and love bringing up children and I wanted to put this book together to help show children that it is absolutely fine to feel all their feelings, it is how they deal with them that makes the big difference. I never want Luca to feel bad about being himself. I have done several counselling courses and I am an Advanced Emotional Freedom Technique Practitioner. While these inform the way I parent and how I approach life in general, my core drive is that I want to do the right thing by Luca in the short and long term. I want to give him unconditional love and acceptance and as much self belief and resilience as I can. I hope I am not sharing too much, but this book was born out of that drive. Sample: I am thoughtful. Sometimes I like to sit quietly and think about things. There is a lot to think about. I am grumpy. Sometimes I get really grumpy and lots of things make me angry and fed up. It usually passes if I work out why I am grumpy and I do something about it. I am sad. It is ok to feel sad but it is nice to talk to someone and share how I feel, then sometimes I feel better. I am excited. I get so excited sometimes when we are going to do something fun. I jump up and down and I clap my hands and I smile the biggest smile. I am writing some lovely fun rhyming story books as well, please check out my website www.annastylesauthor.com for details.

Wellness expert Mallika Chopra speaks to a younger audience in this new picture book about feeling emotions in your body through color. Did you know that your body is absolutely amazing? It can do so many things at the same time, explore the world both inside and outside, and help you feel the feelings deep down inside. When you start to feel big feelings, it's helpful to use colors, words, and breath to explore your body and to make yourself calmer and more at peace. In wellness expert Mallika Chopra's debut picture book, she helps children imagine a rainbow of colors radiating from their body and combines this color connection with breathing exercises to help them relieve stress, tension, fears, and sadness and to feel happier and more at peace. My Body Is a Rainbow, adapted from her middle grade guidebook Just Feel, is sure to be a go-to resource for parents, caregivers, and educators to help preschool-aged children feel safe, creative, strong, loved, unique, wise, and perfect just the way they are.

We teach toddlers to identify colors, numbers, shapes, and letters—but what about their feelings? By illustrating such common emotions as happiness, sadness, anger, fear, and calm, this sensitive book gently encourages young children to open up with parents, teachers, and daycare providers. And kids will LOVE the bright illustrations and amazing 3-D pop-ups on every page!

Deftly melding ethnography, cultural history, literary criticism, and autobiographical reflection, A Feeling for Books is at once an engaging study of the Book-of-the-Month Club's influential role as a cultural institution and a profoundly personal meditation about the experience of reading. Janice Radway traces the history of the famous mail-order book club from its controversial founding in 1926 through its evolution into an enterprise uniquely successful in blending commerce and culture. Framing her historical narrative with writing of a more personal sort, Radway reflects on the contemporary role of the Book-of-the-Month Club in American cultural history and in her own life. Her detailed account of the standards and practices employed by the club's in-house editors is also an absorbing story of her interactions with those editors.

Examining her experiences as a fourteen-year-old reader of the club's selections and, later, as a professor of literature, she offers a series of rigorously analytical yet deeply personal readings of such beloved novels as Marjorie Morningstar and To Kill a Mockingbird. Rich and rewarding, this book will captivate and delight anyone who is interested in the history of books and in the personal and transformative experience of reading.

Pictures, dialogs, poems, and stories portray various emotions we all feel: jealousy, sadness, fear, anger, joy, love, and others.

 #1 Bestselling title  We all have lots of feelings, it's OK to let them show. They all live in our heart as our very own rainbow. What does your body do when you're sad or angry? How do you show someone you are proud? For children, experiencing new emotions and understanding them are two vastly different things, but poet Jessica Urlichs and illustrator Rebekah Ballagh have created an accessible and wonderful rhyming picture book about the rainbow of feelings that live in our heart that helps little ones to express their feelings. Also a qualified counsellor, Rebekah has provided notes for parents and teachers at the back of the book to help caregivers start conversations around understanding, identifying and navigating emotions.

A young girl Feifei is upset and doesn't know how to manage her anger but takes the time to cool off and regain her composure.
